A House that Gleams with a Yellow Light

October 14, 2018

A House that Gleams with a Yellow Light brings together Brandon Fujimagari, Cleo Halfpenny and Sangmin Lee, an unnerving and playful vision of nostalgia for domestic living.

Brandon Fujimagari

@CAPITALINTL/BRANDONFUJIMAGARI.COM

Endlessly inspired by the visual vocabulary of America, Brandon Fujimagari conceives a world of enduring optimism. His work reimagines the codes of the west treading between irony and romance, craft and counterfeit—rekindling the spirit of his home state of California.

Working in partnership with skillful manufacturers across the USA, he brings a contemporary vision to a legacy of heritage processes and material.

Cleo Halfpenny

@CLEOHALFPENNY

Cleo Halfpenny is an emerging artist with a sculpture/installation based practice working primarily with textiles as a medium. Her practice focuses on comfort and notions of the home paired with absurdity and the surreal.

Sangmin Lee

@SANGMINL/SANGMINL.COM

Sangmin Lee is an interdisciplinary installation artist based in Toronto. By using a mixed-media approach Lee uses an assortment of materials, tools and found objects that culminate into carefully organized spaces. His practice engages with intermediate forms within the process of construction. Through reflexively enacting modes of making Lee begins to unravel existing structures and push the boundaries of its framing apparatuses. It is in playing with these very systems that Lee attempts to renegotiate the politics of the self and the established spaces the body occupies.
